If you are going to

South Street and you are a pizza fan, you HAVE to get a slice here. They are huge, great simple slices.

This is comfort food at it's best. Nothing fancy or tricky about it - just a great slice of pizza that consistently, no matter when you go there, tastes great! And, uh, not a bad looking sign (↑, that one). Cool mural too.

Huge, foldable thin pizza, here covered with some garlic and crushed red pepper. Got the picture right before Tony devoured it. Made the way it was intended by Lombardi or was it Grimaldi? A perfect blend of cheese and sauce each and every time. You could go back 10 years after your first visit and expect it to taste just as good as you remembered.
